5: Radwan--294 [3] T-3 (1928?) 1928 Siriono
116, 342, 411, 727

They take great care in the fashioning of their weapons. The arrows are to be regarded as true works of art. Bows and arrows have a considerable length of one and a half to two and a half meters. The bows are kept in water, the arrows lie in the hut. In a corner there is a kind of ground-floor (Bodenraum) due to some special cross-beams against which the arrows and provisions rest. The feathers of the arrows dangle freely in the air. Probably today every Indian group possesses axes or sword-like knives (machete) which were obtained as booty while on raids.